I am a computer citizen and I have been following the Microsoft saga from the very beginning.

The fact that the above company is utilizing tactics that not only have created a monopoly in the computing industry, is also strive with all its resources to create a "Microsoft addiction" just like the tobacco industry did and any other illegal substance peddlers do. I think this is wrong and creates an atmosphere of futile hope for progress.

Our industry, society and country can and must progress, and the progress is brought by competition and creativity, not by deceiving tactics, false promises or hidden agendas.

Another slap on the hand is not enough; you must set an example. I sincerely hope that you would not allow Microsoft's tactics to continue, and also you will set an example for future generations to applaud.
